THE DEPARTMENT

The mission of the Alameda County Probation Department is to support and restore communities by providing compassionate supervision and accountability to justice-involved youth and adults and provide preventive and rehabilitative services through evidence-based practices and collaborative partnerships. It is also committed to its vision of making communities the safest in the nation.

The Department provides its services through its four divisions:

- Adult Field Services Division - provides supervision and specialized programming to justice-involved adults and works closely with community partners to deliver effective services. The division also conducts investigations, prepares presentence reports for the court, and represents the Department on probation matters while yielding improved results for high-risk clients.
- Juvenile Field Services Division - offers rehabilitative services to justice involved youth. Deputy Probation Officers serve in a number of roles, including youth advocate, case manager, and supervision officer. Many of the division’s programs, such as truancy and prevention services, focus on diverting at-risk youth from entering the juvenile justice system. Other programs address substance abuse, keeping youth active participants in their education, and reuniting families.
- Juvenile Facilities Division - is comprised of the Juvenile Hall and Camp Wilmont Sweeney, both located in the City of San Leandro. The Juvenile Hall is a 24-hour secure detention facility that houses youth awaiting court. Juvenile Institution Officers supervise youth who receive various services, including academic programming, job training, medical care, and mental health services, among others. Camp Sweeney houses adolescent males who are ordered into the facility by the Alameda County Juvenile Court. The program model emphasizes personal growth and provides education, behavioral health, and drug treatment services. Recently, funds have been allocated by the County to construct a replacement for Camp Sweeney, which will be a campus-like facility that houses both male and female youth and offers comprehensive programming and services.
- Administration Division - is comprised of a diverse array of units that support the efficient and effective management of the Department: Administrative and Financial Services, Administrative Support Services, Information Technology, Human Resources and Payroll, Training, Professional Standards, and the Volunteers in Probation (VIP) program.
